1 Modal verbs for possibility, certainty and expectation

We use the modal verbs may, could, might, can't and must to talk about things that are possible or certain.

Modal verb	Use	Examples
must	to say that you are certain that something is true	You haven't eaten all day. You must be hungry. You must be joking if you expect me to cook for you again.
can't	to say that you are certain that something is not true	"Is Anne at home?" "No, she can't be at home. She's working today." They can't have the same exam results.
could may / may not	to say that it is possible that something is true or not true	Anne may be at work, but I'm not sure. "Who's that at the door?" "It could be the postman."
might / might not	to say that it is possible (but not very likely) that something is true or not true	You might like to know that we are having a meeting tomorrow evening. It might not be a good idea to call John. He usually prefers email.
should / shouldn't	to say that we expect or don't expect something to happen or to be different	The price should be $10, not $20. If we leave now, we should get there on time.

- A: Where is David?
 B: He should be at work.
 A: He can't be at work. He has a day off today.
 B: He might be at home then.
